The CITY OF SÃO PAULO

SÃO PAULO, the capital of the State of the same name, lies on the tableland, fifty miles from the coast of southern Brazil. It is one of the large commercial cities of the world and through it passes over one-half of the world's coffee

It was established in 1558, a few years before the founding of St. Augustine, Florida, our oldest city.

Its people have always been noted for their energy and enterprise, and the City today ranks second only to Rio de Janeiro in Brazilian industry and trade. It is an important railroad center.

The present population is 500,000, the number of inhabitants having quadrupled in the last forty years. The City is handsome and modern in equipment and appearance, and its great progress of the last fifty years may be appreciated in viewing the following pictures showing various parts of the City in 1862, and the same parts in 1914 or 1916.
